

CHERRY BROTHERS.

They May Move Their Business College Here.

A School That Would Bring Three Hundred Pupils to the City.

Cherry Bros., who have a business school in Bowling Green, have outgrown their quarters there and want to move to some other city that will assist them in establishing their school. They have been in correspondence with city officials here and a committee will be here next week to submit a proposition to the city council.

They guarantee to maintain a school with three hundred boarding pupils, and its location here would of course be a great thing for Hopkinsville.

Their school is for both sexes and teaches a full business course and also a normal course for teachers.

Its growth in Bowling Green has been very rapid and the school is now occupying very crowded quarters.

If satisfactory terms can be agreed upon and material assistance offered, they may buy the Leavell property and build a big school building capable of accommodating five hundred students.

BUD GARTH CAUGHT.

Escaped From Jail Last Winter With Tom Woosley.

Bud Garth, who was in jail for stealing clothing from James M. Green, and escaped with Tom Woosley by sawing out of his cell, has been recaptured and is once more behind the bars.

Woosley was caught soon after escaping.

Garth was captured last Saturday night near Pembroke, by Officer Jno. H. West and Wm. Winn, a farmer. They found him shooting craps at a negro barbecue.

They got the drop on him and he made no resistance, but on the way to town he attempted to do violence to Winn.

Winn's life had been threatened by him and he located him and telephoned for the officer.

Garth is already under indictment and if ever brought to trial is sure of another term in the penitentiary.

It was reported that he had gone off with the army, but this proved to be untrue.

HENDERSON DIED.

The Colored Boy Shot at Crofton Saturday Died That Night.

Accidentally Wounded by Scott Snorton, Who Was Fooling With a Pistol.

Saturday's KENTUCKIAN published exclusively an account of the shooting of Nelia Henderson, at Crofton Friday night. It turns out that the party was a colored boy instead of a woman and his wound proved fatal Saturday night.

The boy whose name was Cornelius Henderson was shot by Scott Snorton also colored, while the latter was fooling with a loaded pistol. The ball entered Henderson's stomach. It was thought at first that the wound was not necessarily fatal, but the boy continued to sink until he died Saturday night.

As the shooting was accidental, it is not likely that Snorton will be arrested.

END OF CONGRESS.

The Most Important Session Since the War.

Exciting Incidents and Vital Legislation Adopted—Unanimity on War Measures.

The adjournment Saturday of the Fifty-fifth congress marks the close of the first war congress in a quarter of a century.

It began with a widespread clamor for sympathetic action for suffering Cuba, but there apparently was then no expectation of an armed conflict. But when the trend of events culminated the emergency was quickly met and necessary legislation enacted. The first few but significant measures suddenly needed, were framed and made law, but with the issue made clear, there was a flood of bills and resolutions that fairly submerged the two branches of congress.

Hawaiian annexation, Spain and Cuba, war appropriations and war revenue legislation, organization of the vast volunteer army and expansion of the navy, a new bankruptcy law—all these were features of the session. Notable speeches and dramatic scenes over foreign issues were comparatively frequent in both legislative chambers. Urgent deficiency bills, carrying millions of dollars, were rushed through with far less delay than marked the course of an ordinary measure of little importance.

The total appropriations footed almost $900,000,000, and upwards of $350,000,000 was purely for war purposes. It was the largest aggregate of any session since the civil war, and the general deficiency was the largest separate measure since the $750,000,000 single appropriation of 1863. The naval appropriation bill provided for three new battleships, four monitors, sixteen torpedo-boat destroyers, twelve torpedo boats and one gunboat. The urgent deficiency bills all carried provisions for aggressive work in the prosecution of the war. The general deficiency bill, enacted in the last days, carried a provision for refunding the indebtedness of the Central and Western Pacific railroads to the government.

The first real war legislation was when congress placed, without limitations, $50,000,000 in the president's hands as an emergency fund for national defense. Party lines were swept away and both houses unanimously voted confidence in the administration. Soon afterward a bill reimbursing the survivors of the Maine disaster for their losses, not to exceed a year's pay, with a similar amount to those who perished, became a law.

On April 11 the president, in a message, left the Cuban resolution in the hands of congress. Resolutions were soon enacted and became a law April 19, declaring that the people of Cuba ought to be and are free and independent and demanding that Spain relinquish its authority and withdraw its land and naval forces from Cuba and Cuban waters, and directing the use of our land and naval forces to enforce the resolutions.

The declaration of war was passed by congress on April 25. Three days before the declaration of war President McKinley had approved the volunteer act. Under it all the soldiers massed against Spain mustered in the entire volunteer army have been raised, embracing 125,000 men under the first and 75,000 under the second call. A month previous legislation had been enacted recognizing the line of the army, effecting the three battalion war formations.

On the feature of the session was the enactment of the war revenue law. Its framers expect it to produce $150,000,000.

Other revenue legislation included a bill enlarging in favor of importers the provision as to the disposition of abandoned merchandise; and extending the outage allowance on distilled spirits in bonds from four to six years.

Late in the session a general bankruptcy law was enacted providing for voluntary and involuntary bankruptcy.

A WATERY GRAVE.

Frank Ostein Drowned at Crofton Saturday.

Was Bathing in a Pond With Several of His Friends and Sank.

Crofton, Ky., July 11.—(Special.)—Frank Ostein, a well-known citizen of North Christian, was drowned Saturday evening while bathing in the waters of Pond River. He was with a party of friends and they were swimming in deep water, when Ostein got beyond his depth.

The details of the drowning are about as follows:

Leslie Pepper and Jack Johnson were bathing at Johnson's mill pond. Ostein, who lived near, came down and joined them.

They were in water two feet deep, above the dam, and Ostein leaped from the dam, below into water thirteen feet deep and swam down and came back to repeat the performance. His companions tried to persuade him not to do so, but he again jumped off turning a somersault into the deep water. Before he could recover himself the swift current caught him. He called for help and Pepper went to his assistance and while holding to the dam extended a pole to the drowning man.

Ostein failed to reach the pole and Pepper came very near being swept over himself by the water, but was caught by Johnson just in time.

Ostein's body was recovered that night about 11 o'clock, fifty-yards below where he had plunged in, in water two feet deep.

Ostein was about 30 or 35 years of age and leaves a wife and five children, all girls.
